Turkey – Istanbul and Remarkable Cappadocia with Buddy Bombard

10 Days, 9 Nights

Five morning balloon flights scheduled in Cappadocia

Cappadocia, in central Turkey, is an astonishing landscape of surrealistic beauty. Over 60 million years of erosion have transformed its compacted volcanic ash into thousands of bizarre rock cones and hundreds of weirdly textured canyons. From the 4th to the 13th centuries, Christians escaping religious persecution carved cave dwellings, monasteries and churches into the soft canyon walls. About 150 of the approximately 900 churches that remain are still richly decorated with precious frescoes. Starting in the 7th century, subterranean cities were cut as deep as seven stories straight down into the rock, housing 5,000 people and their animals escaping the Arab invasions of the 7th and 8th centuries. By the 10th century there were some 30,000 people living in the rock!

These cave dwellers are now gone, and centuries of erosion have exposed many of the intricate apartments they created. Our unique ability to fly slowly in our balloons, just a few feet from these ruins and geological formations, is due to the gentle winds that are normal for this area. This allows us to treat you to a remarkable, close-up view of this strange and eerie wonderland.
